Nabi Sahak Receives Fulbright Award

Nabi Sahak, a Magna Cum Laude from George Mason University, United States, and a former Rotary Foundation Peace Fellow with MA from the University of Queensland, Australia, has now received a Fulbright U.S. Student Program award to United Kingdom in War Studies from the U.S. Department of State and the J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board. Mr. Sahak will conduct research at King's College London as part of a project to explore the potential for dialogue among the warring factions in Afghanistan and the internationally backed central government, as well as addressing the implications of the deep-seated Afghan conflict for regional and global peace and security in the post 9/11 world order.

Mr. Sahak is one of over 1,900 U.S. citizens who will conduct research, teach English, and provide expertise abroad for the 2018-2019 academic year through the Fulbright U.S. Student Program. Recipients of Fulbright awards are selected on the basis of academic and professional achievement as well as record of service and leadership potential in their respective fields.

The Fulbright Program is the flagship international educational exchange program sponsored by the U.S. government and is designed to build lasting connections between the people of the United States and the people of other countries. The Fulbright Program is funded through an annual appropriation made by the U.S. Congress to the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs. Participating governments and host institutions, corporations, and foundations around the world also provide direct and indirect support to the Program, which operates in over 160 countries worldwide.

Since its inception in 1946, the Fulbright Program has given more than 380,000 students, scholars, teachers, artists, professionals, and scientists the opportunity to study, teach and conduct research, exchange ideas, and contribute to finding solutions to shared international concerns.

Fulbrighters address critical global challenges in all areas while building relationships, knowledge, and leadership in support of the long-term interests of the United States. Fulbright alumni have achieved distinction in many fields, including 59 who have been awarded the Nobel Prize, 82 who have received Pulitzer Prizes, and 37 who have served as a head of state or government.
